beautiful, amazing, perfect!!

By Jessica Sotelo (Angie & Jessica's Dreamy Reads)

I thought this story was absolutely amazing. First of, I thought it was beautifully written. This was my first book by this author but it will most certainly not be my last. It was so well written, I could not put it down. I read a lot, but it's not very often that a story grips me the way this story did. I could not wait to find out where this went.

My heart literally hurt every step of the way. I've read quite a few stories in recent months where a main character suffers from amnesia, but this was such an original take on it. I loved the complexity of the characters, the dynamic between them, the angst and drama and romance. I loved it all.

I think I loved this story so much because it was so far from predictable. I went through such an array of emotions. In one respect, I hoped that Stefan's memories never came back, that Claire would have a second chance with this man who she loved, and he'd be all the wonderful things that the old, pre-amnesia Stefan was not. But I'd immediately change my mind because I loved for the closure of finding out why the old Stefan really left Claire to begin with, and I wanted her to find peace with both sides of Stefan, I wanted the old Stefan to somehow atone for his abandonment of Claire. The entire way through this story, I was riddled with fear, with Claire's same fear, that with his memories would come a second round of heated fights and a very unhappy ending. I felt all of her hopes, her fears, his longing to remember... all of it.

This is an amazing read... a new personal favorite. Beautifully written. Refreshing and heartbreaking. And just plain perfect!

Review:

"Forget Me Not" by Nina Blake writes this wonderful contemporary romance that will leave you to think of long after the read. This was a "powerful story of love and lost and enduring pain and finally, to learning to love and live and trust again." I found this read an amazing one that has been beautifully written. You can tell a lot of thought was put in this read that I could not put it down until I had totally finished it. Think of this...a marriage is over after being estranged for months...living in separate apartments and actually living separate lives and for an unknown accident you have no memory of who you are, what you want or if you have someone left behind. Well, this all happened to 'Stefan' who had no memory of who he was but you will find 'Clair' at his bedside. For Stefan is suffering retrograde amnesia...meaning he has no recall of who he is. Stefan 'doesn't recognize his own family, and none of the information from his law degree is gone.' What is he to do? What will Claire do? Now, this will be the time that I say you must pick up "Forget Me Not" to see what will happen in this situation for these two people. Yes, this is an amnesia story and I really did like the way this author brought this out to the reader. Like I said earlier...this really gives you something to think about.

"Forget Me Not" was very 'intense and emotional' read and all of the characters were all very believable only giving you an excellent read that I would recommend to you.

Unforgettable romance

By Teenawriter

Nina Blake has crafted a beautifully written story about a man whose loss of memory reminds him of where his heart truly lies in this contemporary romance that is sure to linger in the reader's mind long after the last word has been read. Stefan's amnesia has erased his recent past. He has no memory of his parents, his law practice or his ex wife. Clair remembers too well the breakdown of their marriage and how heartlessly he treated her. Yet in Stefan's time of need she can't turn her back on him even if it means opening herself up to more pain when his memory returns. Blake writes with sensitivity and compassion about believable characters dealing with a difficult situation against the backdrop of Sydney's cityscape. Highly recommended.
